SRT localizes products to meet demand in French speaking countries

Annapolis, MD USA – February 14, 2007 - South River Technologies announced that it has released French language versions of its popular WebDrive product. WebDrive is a desktop client that connects a Windows drive letter to a server on the Internet. This enables users to access files on their servers the same way that they access local files on their PCs.

South River Technologies does approximately 40% of sales internationally. The largest portions of European sales come from German and French speaking countries. 2006 sales of the English versions of SRT products in French speaking countries increased by about 30% over the same time period in 2005.

Softroad has been selected as SRT's exclusive distributor of the French version of WebDrive. Softroad was instrumental in bringing the French WebDrive to market. The French language version of WebDrive may also be purchased directly from SRT.

"While work from home and virtual offices develop, people increasingly need to access their data remotely and securely, from anywhere and at any time" states Yoann Le Bihan, CEO of Softroad, "that's why we started a valuable partnership with the leader in remote data access, South River Technologies. We very pleased to be South River Technologies' exclusive distributor of the French version of WebDrive."

About South River Technologies

Founded in 1996, South River Technologies (www.SouthRiverTech.com) develops file management software which is used for file collaboration and remote file access. SRT's unique client technology, commercially available as WebDrive®, integrates into the Windows environment, creating an instantly familiar interface for the end user, reducing training and support costs. This technology is also licensed to independent software vendors to add functionality to existing product suites. ISPs can also license co-branded versions of SRT products as an add-on to their service offerings.
